On Easter morning, Blueberry Muffin invited all of her berry best friends over for a celebration.

"Happy Easter!" said Blueberry as she greeted her friends.
"Happy Easter!" replied Strawberry Shortcake, Plum Pudding, Raspberry Torte, Lemon Meringue, and Orange Blossom.

But when the girls looked around Blueberry's bookstore, they were very confused. They didn't see any decorations or food.

"Are we early for the party?" asked Raspberry.

"You're right on time for my berry special surprise," said Blueberry.
"I made Easter baskets for each of you. But first, you have to find them!"
"What a fruitastic idea!" said Strawberry.

Blueberry smiled and handed Orange a note. "This is your first clue," said Blueberry.

Orange read the clue out loud: "The tools of my trade are a shovel, rake, and hoe. You can visit me where sweet and juicy fruit grow."

"I know we can figure this out if we work together," said Strawberry. "Hmm . . . where does sweet, juicy fruit grow?"

"In Berry Bitty Grove!" cried Orange. "Follow me!"

When the girls got to the grove, they found Berrykin Bloom planting strawberry seeds.

"Happy Easter, Berrykin Bloom! We're looking for our Easter baskets. Have you seen them?" asked Strawberry.

"No," said Berrykin Bloom, "but Blueberry left this for you." Berrykin Bloom handed Raspberry a note.

"It's our next clue!" said Raspberry. "This is berry exciting!"

Raspberry read the clue to her friends. "I crack out of my shell and start to sing around Easter time, each and every spring."

"I think I know where we're supposed to go next!" cried Plum. "Follow me!"

"Just like I thought!" said Plum, pointing to a bird's nest high up in a tree.
"And look!" said Strawberry. "Our next clue is in that baby bird's beak."
Just then, the bird let go of the note. It sailed through the air and landed right in Lemon's hands.

Lemon read the clue to her friends. "I go around our town to deliver the mail. No matter if it's in the sun, rain, snow, or hail."

"Postmaster Bumblebee delivers the mail," said Strawberry. "Let's go see him!"

At the post office, Strawberry, Orange, Raspberry, Plum, and Lemon looked around. They didn't see the postmaster, their Easter baskets, or any more clues.

"Are we in the wrong place?" asked Lemon.

Just then, the postmaster arrived. "Can I help you?" he asked.

"Hello, Postmaster Bumblebee!" said Strawberry.

"Hello, Strawberry! I have some mail for you and your friends," he replied as he gave Plum a note.

"It's from Blueberry!" cried Plum. Then she read the clue out loud: "Take a look by where the brook bends, you will find some berry sweet friends!"

"This is an easy one!" said Raspberry. "Come on!"

When the girls reached the bend in the brook, they found Berrykin Bloom, Postmaster Bumblebee, and Blueberry on a picnic blanket.

"Happy Easter!" cried Blueberry. "You did it!"

She handed each of her friends an Easter basket. They were filled with beautifully decorated Easter eggs.

"Thank you, Blueberry!" said all her friends.

"Blueberry, this was a berry great Easter surprise," said Strawberry. "But you forgot one final clue!"

"I did?" Blueberry asked. She was very confused.

Strawberry handed Blueberry a note. Blueberry read it out loud: "We know a girl that can't be beat. She's smart and fun and super sweet!"

"Blueberry Muffin!" cried Strawberry, Orange, Raspberry, Lemon, and Plum.
